PETA Puts Pressure On Zoo

New Violations Alleged In Amended Complaint

by Joe Potter

An animal rights group has stepped up its efforts against Dade City's Wild Things for its alleged mistreatment of tigers the company formerly owned.

People For The Ethical Treatment of Animals initially sued the privately owned zoo in October 2016 when it alleged Kenneth and Kathy Stearns were failing to provide adequate housing for the tigers they kept at their Blanton Road facility. The lawsuit also alleges the company was violating the Endangered Species Act by prematurely separating tiger cubs from their mothers and forcing the cubs to swim with paying members of the public.

On June 8, PETA amended its original complaint and now alleges Wild Things is responsible for the death of three newborn tiger cubs a year ago.

Local Girl Impresses 'Dance' Judges; Moving On To First Round

by Emily Kochanski

Dade City's own Victoria Neukom will be moving on to the first round of competition on the TV show "So You Think You Can Dance." Neukom captivated the judges with some mind-blowing moves during Monday's audition episode. She flipped, twirled, bent, and leapt with a mesmerizing force and grace worthy of a Cirque du Soleil performer.

When her performance was complete, judges Nigel Lythgoe, Mary Murphy, Vanessa Hudgens and guest judge Stephen "tWitch" Boss were left nearly speechless. First to speak, Hudgens could only utter an awestruck "wow."

Honoring The Flag

East Pasco Celebrates The Red, White And Blue

by Emily Kochanski

Pasco County residents and organizations came together June 14 to honor the stars and stripes at multiple Flag Day events including one at the American Legion of Dade City, which held their second annual flag burning ceremony.

While burning the symbol of our nation may sound like a terrible crime, it is actually an honorable method of disposing of flags that have become faded and tattered after years of use. This year, the American Legion retired more than 200 flags, about half of their total from last year.

"We would rather burn the flags than see them go to a landfill," said Edward Gorecki, the commander of the American Tampa Bay sponsored the breakfast. Founded in 1990, the Community Foundation of Tampa Bay connects donors, nonprofits, community and business leaders, professional advisors, volunteers and residents to make the maximum positive impact in the Tampa Bay region.

Denyve Boyle, the foundation's director of philanthropy, and Seton Hegensebach, a Hernando County estate planning attorney, both spoke on behalf of the foundation.

"We're a catalyst of collaboration. We bring together the bigger players," Boyle said.

"We are going to help you market yourselves and to make nonprofits more sustainable."

People are often looking for ways to have their assets distributed to support specific causes after they die, Hegensebach said. They may want their money to be used to help pets or for other causes, and they are, in most cases, used for that purpose for perpetuity, Hegensebach said.

The foundation currently has total assets of more than $224 million.

Getting Their Goat

Seniors Stretch With Fun, Furry Partners

by Emily Kochanski

The Zephyrhills community learned Monday that the key to good health is regular exercise and a little bit of laughter. That's when American House Zephyrhills invited the community to participate in a relaxing, fun-filled goat yoga class.

Goat yoga has recently become a rapidly growing trend, and it's easy to see why. It combines a low impact, relaxing workout with the joy received from cuddling with baby animals. The Grady Goat Foundation, which hosted the event, detailed a number of other significant benefits for some truly deserving children.

"Our foundation raises money for charities who support children with disabilities," said Debbie Canton, the founder of the Grady Goat Foundation. "My husband suggested that I start the foundation and use goat yoga as a fundraiser every weekend."

Canton founded and named the foundation after a goat named Grady who was born blind and deaf. Her compassion for Grady is what prompted her to direct the foundation's funds towards children who were suffering from similar afflictions. This is what attracted yoga instructor Leiko KoKo Bergers, whose daughter suffers from cerebral palsy. Goat yoga combined Bergers' love for her daughter with her love for animals.

"I have a company called Urban Wilderness Yoga. All of my classes are held outside, and I'm obsessed with animals," said Bergers. "One day, I'd like to have my own animal sanctuary."

In the course of an hour, Monday's attendees participated in a typical yoga class, engaging in all of the common gentle stretches and poses. But once the participants got down on their hands and knees, the goats literally leapt into action, prancing from the back of one person to the next. One American House resident who was quite popular among the bleating critters was 81-year-old Ron Hinson.

"I got down on the ground and I didn't know if I would be able to get back up," Hinson said. "But that was some experience. Those goats climbed all over my back. I think I even had two of them on me at once."

The happiness Hinson took away from the experience is, according to Canton, the biggest benefit of goat yoga.

"Besides the stretching that comes with the yoga, you're also getting the joy that it brings to you," Canton said. "Laughter is the best medicine, right?"

"I love seeing all of the smiles during the classes and the fact that people just move freely and are in the moment," Bergers said. "There are just so many beautiful and amazing things that happen during these goat yoga classes."

The Grady Goat Foundation offers classes every weekend at their Thonotosassa ranch, but you must reserve a spot in advance. To purchase tickets or learn more about the Grady Goat Foundation, visit gradygoat.org.

Pasco Wades Into Scallop Season

Scalloping was banned here in Pasco County beginning in 1994 in an effort to help save Florida's shellfish population.

Well, 24 years later the tables have turned and the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission has decided to bring Pasco in for a 10-day period beginning July 20. Farther up the road into Hernando County, the season starts July 1 and runs through Sept. 24. As I have always heard, "Some things just don't seem fair." Hey, it's a start. Pasco gets another 10-day season in 2019, as well. The hope is beginning in 2020 Pasco can join other areas for a more inclusive scallop-hunting season.

To collect these tasty bay scallops you have to have a Florida saltwater fishing license, unless you are exempt or have a free shoreline fishing license and plan to wade out to score your catch. The limits are strictly enforced: Two gallons of whole bay scallops in the shell or one pint of scallop meat per person per day. There is a maximum limit per vessel of 10 gallons in the shell or a half-gallon of scallop meat.

Jenny and I have pretty much gone out every season. It's so much fun to load up the boat and take the trip down the Homosassa River into the beautiful Gulf of Mexico. Along the way you might spot a dolphin or two playing in the boat's wake. Once you find a good spot you can drop the anchor, ideally in four to six feet of water.

Scallops are a moving target and love to play hide and seek in the sea grass. They may be in one area today and gone tomorrow. Once spotted, they are pretty easy to reach down and grab them. If the scallop sees you it will probably take off and the chase is on. Remember they have up to 100 eyes.

Don't fret if you don't have a boat or a friend who asks you to join them. Most scalloping areas have a multitude of boat captains who can make your trip fun. When you go out with them they have the saltwater fishing licenses for all onboard. They have all of the safety equipment, dive flags and equipment you will need including a mask, fins and snorkel, along with a bag for the scallops. They are very knowledgeable of the water in those areas. Last season it seemed like most were getting their limits with no problem.

To schedule a trip, just Google 'scallop trips' and it would be wise to make your boat reservations right now. Keep in mind that during the season it gets really busy so plan ahead.

Scalloping is great family fun and the rewards are pretty tasty but you won't get to sample them in a restaurant. Commercial harvesting of bay scallops is prohibited. The only way you are going to enjoy them is to catch them yourself. When you do don't forget to invite your friends and maybe, if you are lucky, they will do the same for you.

Visit Pasco Launches Matching Marketing Sponsorship Program

Special event organizers have an exciting opportunity to expand their market reach through Visit Pasco's new Matching Marketing Sponsorship Program. The Pasco County Office of Tourism Development is launching the program, which will provide up to $5,000 to promote events and increase visitation to Pasco.

"Matching provides a win-win partnership for the County and event organizers," said Tourism Program Manager Consuelo Sanchez. "It's a great tool to reach new markets outside the Tampa Bay region and to increase attendance."

Matching Marketing Sponsorship Program guidelines:

- Applications must be received by June 28
- Approved applicants must present

a funding request to the Tourist Development Council

- The Pasco Board of County Commissioners grants final approval
- MMSP requires a dollar-for-dollar match and/or in-kind goods or services
- Maximum allowable match is $5,000
- MMSP funds are for event-related marketing expenditures only
- Marketing dollars must be used to promote outside the Tampa Bay Area
- MMSP program replaces the previous Special Event Marketing Program

To apply for funding, contact the Office of Tourism Development at (727) 847-8129 or cbsanchez@pascocountyfl.net.

Local dancer Victoria Neukom made a successful television debut on 'So You Think You Can Dance' earlier this week.

"You did a great job of using the length of your body," said Boss. "And the transitions, I thought, were seamless." Lythgoe will be the one Neukom will have to impress in upcoming episodes. While impressed with her skills, he found her audition lacked one specific element:

He was a tad disappointed that Neukom's routine focused mainly on gymnastic inspired moves rather than ballet. But, in the end, it was Lythgoe who welcomed her up to the judges' table to receive her ticket to the first round. "So You Think You Can Dance" airs every Mon. at 8 p.m. on Fox 13. Tune in every week to watch Victoria's progress.

The deaths reportedly occurred while the cubs and 19 adult tigers were being transferred to a park in Oklahoma just ahead of a court-ordered inspection. A March 2 decision by the U.S. District Court for the Middle District of Florida "allows PETA to hold Dade City's Wild Things' feet to the fire for sending 19 [adult] tigers on an 18-hour journey without air conditioning or water, which proved deadly for three newborn cubs," said Brittany Peet, PETA Foundation Director of Captive Animal Law Enforcement. "Nineteen tigers have subsequently been relocated and are recovering at a reputable sanctuary, and PETA's lawsuit is working to ensure that this facility [Wild Things] will never possess tigers again," Peet said in the June 8 press release.

Federal Magistrate Judge Amanda Sansone's ruling in March said Wild Things is no longer allowed to own any tigers because of the Stearns's "flagrant disregard" for the court. However, Wild Things distributed an email this week announcing the addition of a new program at its facility called Animal Ambassadors. The 'ambassadors' reportedly include baby monkeys, wallabies, goats, a baby sloth and fennec fox, and a new tiger cub. Tiger cub encounters with the new baby are already available. Wild Things said encounters with the other animals were already available. Attempts on Monday to gain comments from the Stearns' couple or their attorney, Gus Centrone of Centrone & Schrader of Tampa, were unsuccessful.

Oral Hygiene Addressed

Grant To Give More Help To Children

by Keri McAlpine

Pasco Kids First is launching a new bilingual oral health navigation program, which will directly benefit hundreds of children and families in east Pasco. The three-year $283,553 grant from the Florida Blue Foundation will provide enough funding to allow an Oral Health Navigator to personally assist families, as well as assist with treatment costs and transportation to appointments when needed. "Our mission is to help people and communities achieve better health. As we see the number of visits to the emergency room for dental pain and oral health issues skyrocket across the state, it's important that we start the habit of good oral health at a young age," said David Pizzo, Florida Blue Market President for the West Florida Region. Julissa Cantillo, the Oral Health Navigator, began visiting individual families in February and is scheduled to visit 100 families in a year's time. By the end of the three-year grant, 400 families will be served, according to Becky Bennett, Director of Development of Pasco Kids First. The grant not only serves east Pasco, but the entire county as well as Hernando. In east Pasco alone, PKF's Healthy Families Pasco-Hernando program serves about 120 families each year. The need for oral health education and prevention was determined by the home visits through the healthy families program, which focuses on teaching new parents the skills and goals to be self-sufficient. While other health services have been performing well through PKF's 29 years in Pasco, the dental care was lacking.

"Research shows that poor oral health has an effect on overall health," said Bennett. "More than one quarter of U.S. children aged 2 to 5 and approximately one half of all children have tooth decay. There are 10 teaspoons of sugar in one can of soda." The visits from the Oral Health Navigator will be entertaining and educational. Activities and pictures will be used to teach children proper oral hygiene, while resources will be presented to parents in determining the best route of professional dental care. "The goal is to help provide them with different options, providers," Bennett said. "She'll be connecting them based on what their dental insurance is, or lack of insurance ... which is really difficult." Bennett said about 8 percent of dentists accept Medicaid, which makes the search for a dentist challenging. But, routine dental visits are important. Many struggling families will ignore oral problems until a more major procedure – such as a root canal – comes up resulting in a possible trip to the emergency room. Basic supplies such as toothbrushes and toothpaste will be provided to families during visits to improve oral hygiene status in between dentist visits. Delaying such preventative care, Bennett said, leads to time away from school and time away from work for the parents. Pasco Kids First is partnering with Premier Community HealthCare and the Pasco County Health Department to provide assessments and treatment for kids and their parents at no cost to the families. Legion Post #15. "Burning has always been the proper way to dispose of the flag. We do it ceremoniously, the way it should be done."

Attendees at this year's ceremony included Dade City Commissioner Nicole Deese Newlon, post developmental chairman of the American Legion Eunice Butts, and Bob Hatfield, representing Rep. Gus Bilirakis (R-Tarpon Springs).

"That flag is a symbol that defines who we are and binds us together as a nation," Hatfield said. "We ask ourselves 'why does America have an immigration problem?' It's really simple: we are that beacon of opportunity, that beacon of hope and liberty."

In keeping with the patriotic spirit that the day holds, American House Zephyrhills hosted their own Flag Day festivities beginning at 11:45. Staff, residents, and members of the community gathered together for a flag raising at the facility's entrance.

"When you walk into any American House on Flag Day, you will see the same kind of event going on," said Keaton Hobbs, the facility's community and relations director. "It's such a fun way to honor the flag and our country."

The event featured a few inspiring words from Zephyrhills Mayor Gene Whitfield and a gun salute and rendition of taps courtesy of the honor guard. The ceremony concluded with an all-American spread featuring hamburgers, hot dogs and baked beans.

"Our residents look forward to this every year," Hobbs said. "It's something we've done for the last three years. We do have a lot of veterans here, so we use this event to honor them as well."

As part of the annual flag retirement ceremony, members of the Dade City American Legion formally inspect the flags that have been turned in for a respectful disposal.

A little more than 200 flags were honorably burned at this year's event.

Men's Health Focus Of Fair

Event Offered Screenings, BMI Data

by Keri McAlpine

Premier Community HealthCare is known for holding a range of different free health care events, but last week they added a new one to their roster. The Men's Health Day debuted on June 13 at the Dade City Family Health Center on Fifth Street.

Men aged 18 and older were welcomed to the event to access free health screenings, which included blood pressure screenings, skin cancer scans and a body mass index calculation. Organizations providing information on cancer were also on hand to answer questions.

After patients were seen, they were treated to some light refreshments and a small toolkit keychain.

Premier CEO Joey Resnick said the event was "great". A total of 17 patients stopped by the three-hour event.

"We do events catered for women throughout the year so we wanted to do one catered to men. Resnick said. "It was very successful for our first one."

"I admit, it's my wife that encouraged me to attend the event today," said Miguel, a Men's Health Day patient. "With a demanding work schedule, no insurance and children to care for it is nearly financially impossible to get healthcare services, but not anymore ... without an event like this my health needs would continue to be overlooked."

Resnick said Premier plans to expand the men's event next year to spread among the organization's 10 sites in Pasco and Hernando counties.

Premier's Dade City location is at 37912 Church Ave. and can be reached by calling (352) 518-2000.

As part of the Premier Health's Men's Health Screening event, attendees were greeted and checked in by Liliana Gutierrez, research coordinator, Moffitt Cancer Center; Shamain VanErkelen, and Jose Rodriguez, community service specialists for Premier; and Rania Abdulla, research program administrator, Moffitt Cancer Center.

Party At Park Officially Begins Food Program

Pasco County Schools Food and Nutrition Services kicked off its popular and highly successful Summer BreakSpot Program with a party of sorts June 14.

More than 100 youngsters were fed at last week's event at Zephyr Park's main pavilion.

The kickoff featured a water slide, face painting, games and other fun activities.

The school district has specifically equipped buses in which youngsters may sit and relax in air-conditioned comfort while eating their meals. The buses are also stocked with an ample supply of books students may borrow to read.

"The school superintendent (Kurt Browning) and the school board really support this program," said Lee Beville. He is bus driver for Pasco County schools and it's his first year driving one for BreakSpot, which actually started feeding kids June 4.

Vendors participating in last week's party included the Pasco Sheriff's Office, CareerSource Pasco Hernando, Early Learning Coalition of Pasco-Hernando, Premier Community HealthCare, Alliance For Substance Abuse Prevention, the Pasco County Cooperative Extension Office, BayCare Behavioral Health and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Florida Hospital Zephyrhills Receives Prestigious Award

Florida Hospital Zephyrhills has been awarded the Mission: Lifeline Gold Receiving Quality Achievement Award from the American Heart Association/American Stroke Association for implementing specific quality improvement measures for the treatment of patients who suffer severe heart attacks. This is one of the highest awards that a hospital can attain.

More than 250,000 people experience a ST-Elevation Myocardial Infarction, known as a STEMI, annually in the United States. This is a very serious type of heart attack during which one of the heart's major arteries that supplies oxygen and nutrient-rich blood to the heart muscle is blocked. To prevent death, it's critical to restore blood flow as quickly as possible, either by mechanically opening the blocked vessel or by providing clot-busting medication.

Florida Hospital Zephyrhills earned the prestigious award by meeting specific criteria and standards of performance for quick and appropriate treatment of a STEMI. These include emergency procedures to re-establish blood flow to blocked arteries in heart attack patients coming into the hospital directly or by transfer from another facility.

The American Heart Association's Mission: Lifeline program's goal is to reduce barriers to prompt treatment for heart attacks, beginning with the 9-1-1 call, to EMS transport and continuing through hospital treatment and discharge. The initiative provides tools, training and other resources to support heart attack care following protocols from the most recent evidence-based treatment guidelines.

"Florida Hospital Zephyrhills is dedicated to providing optimal care for heart attack patients," said Gwen Alonso, RN, Chief Nursing Officer. "We are very pleased to be recognized for our dedication and achievements in cardiac care through Mission: Lifeline."
